If you're hooked on continuing short story serials, Granny story starts here: Beginnings ~ Granny Weaver starts the circle, and all the women have a reason not to come, but push back fears and eventually go. Amish weddings are typically in November. The knitting circle women see happy newlyweds everywhere, but for two, it's a painful season; one wishing she was married, another wishing she was not. SUMMARY: Granny Weaver is praying for five women in her Old Order Amish community in Smicksburg, PA., but nothing seems to be happening. Spinning wool one day she ponders the fact that fibers wrapped around each other make a yarn that's hard to break. Maybe the women she sees unraveling need to be spun together so they don't break. So Granny starts a knitting circle to make items for tornado victims in Joplin, MO. She invites Maryann who looks too tired and needs a break from her eight children. Ella seems mighty down since a doctor told her she can't have children. Emma feels she'll never get married because of her weight. Ruth has been depressed since the day she got married and won't tell anyone why. Elizabeth never married to take care of her handicapped father, but others suspect she has a broken heart over a broken courtship. Over the course of a year these women open up at the knitting circle. Their hearts are encouraged, being knit together in love as they face trials and trouble together. About Karen Anna Vogel: A trusted English friend among Amish in Western PA and Western NY, my four grown children call me an Amish Addict. My husband of thirty years shares my addiction. Our Old Order Amish friends have taken us back to a time when life was slower. Slow enough to enjoy our faith, family and friends. Slow enough to make me relax and join a knitting circle and learn to spin wool. Wanting to share what I've learned from these gentle people led me to write Amish fiction.
